

GENERATIVE PERSPECTIVES ON THE SYNTAX AND ACQUISITION OF JAPANESE

Co-sponsored by Center for Integrative Research on Language, Brain, & Cognition, GSICS, Tohoku University

Venue: Conference Room, GSICS, Tohoku University: 1st floor of Building A08 on the map at http://www.tohoku.ac.jp/japanese/profile/campus/01/kawauchi/kawauchi_map_.pdf

DECEMBER 1 (Sat)

<10:00-12:00>

Satoshi Oku (Hokkaido University)

“Light Verb and Verbal Compounds”

Tomohiro Fujii (Yokohama National University)

“Grammar Competition and Parametric Ambiguity”

<1:30-3:30>

Roger Liao (Academia Sinica)

“When Even Meets Only: a Dissection of EVEN in Chinese”

Yuta Sakamoto (Chukyo University)

“Some Notes on Stranded Particles in Japanese” (joint work with Hiroaki Saito)

<3:30-4:30>

Poster Presentations by graduate students at Tohoku University

<4:30-6:30>

Hideki Kishimoto (Kobe University)

“On ECM Subjects in Japanese”

Keiko Murasugi (Nanzan University)

“What Can Child Japanese Tell Us about Syntactic Theory and Vice Versa?”

DECEMBER 2 (Sun)

<9:30-11:30>

Masahiko Takahashi (Yamagata University)

“Raising to Object and Clausal Arguments”

Izumi Yu (Nanzan University)

“Predicativism and Anaphoric Uses of Proper Names”

<12:30-2:30>

Youichi Miyamoto (Osaka University)

“On Nominal-internal Distributive Interpretation in Japanese Fragment Answers”

Dylan Tsai (National Tsinghua University)

“Two Implicit Applicative Constructions in Chinese and the Syntax of Silent Light Verbs”

Contact: Daiko Takahashi (GSICS, Tohoku University)

E-mail: daiko@tohoku.ac.jp